Things to Know About Kinship Care

- During a child protective services case, the child's safety is our number one priority.
- It is important to understand that after a child is placed with kin, it is possible for another living arrangement to be found that is considered in the best interest of the child.
- Kin are involved with the family team in making decisions about the needs of the child, including placement.
- Our goal is for the child to return home with the parent or guardian whenever safely possible. However, a kinship caregiver may be asked to consider adoption or permanent custody and guardianship of the child if they cannot safely return home.
- Once DCFS becomes involved, the juvenile court determines whether a child will return to his or her parent/guardians, be placed in temporary custody with kin, or remain in state custody to be placed with a licensed foster family.

Why Kinship Care?

When a child can stay within their community and culture, the trauma of removal is lessened, and outcomes for the child and family improve. This is why Kinship and Kinship Caregivers are so important to Utah children and families.

Who Can Be a Kinship Caregiver?

Kinship caregiver placements are determined by the following specific order of preference, and are subject to the child's best interest:

- 1. Non-custodial parents
- 2. Relatives: the child's grandparents, great-grandparents, aunts, great-aunts, uncle, great-uncle, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepparent, first cousin, stepsibling, sibling, parent's first cousins, and adults who are the adoptive parents of the child's sibling. For an Indian child, relative also includes an "extended family member" as defined by the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA).
- 3. Friends: If relatives are not available, an adult identified by the parent or the child whom the child knows and is comfortable with may be considered. Friends must be willing to become licensed foster parents for the specific child.

Kinship Considerations

Before placing a child with you, it is important we assess the safety of the child in your home. For this reason, state statute requires that we provide information to show:

- The child is comfortable with you.
- You are committed to caring for the child as long as necessary and can provide a secure and stable environment for the child.
- A limited home inspection has been completed.
- A background screening for all persons in the home has been completed.
- Any history of abusive or neglectful behavior toward other children that may indicate or present a danger to the child.
- You recognize the parent's history of abuse, and are committed to protecting the child.
- You are able to resist inappropriate requests by the parent for access to the child, in accordance with court orders..

Questions to Ask Yourself

- Will I have family support?
- How will this impact my own children and spouse?
- Do I understand the circumstances surrounding this child's removal?
- Will I be able to let this child go back home when the time comes, or will I be able to offer this child a permanent home if necessary?
- Will I need financial assistance?
- Will I need assistance to meet the medical, dental, or emotional health needs of this child?

Options for Kinship Caregivers

Under both options, Kinship Caregivers are crucial members of the team providing for the needs of the child and family while working toward the child's safe return home.

Option A: The Kinship Caregiver becomes a Licensed Kinship Family (Foster Family Home)

- The state has temporary custody and guardianship while working with the parent(s) toward the child's safe return home.
- You will receive training to include trauma, childhood development, and how to navigate the child welfare system.
- You will receive a monthly reimbursement based on the child's needs.
- DCFS will facilitate access to specialized services and support, including Medicaid eligibility.
- Health care professionals will assist in ensuring that the child's medical, dental, and mental health care needs are met.
- Children in state custody may qualify for additional educational and therapeutic support.
- A friend designated by the parent or child must be willing to become licensed within 6 months of placement.
- Children in state custody may qualify for additional educational and therapeutic support.

Option B: The Kinship Caregiver has temporary custody and guardianship of the child

- As part of a child and family team, you will work with DCFS toward the child's safe return home.
- As the child's guardian, you may need to seek support from community resources including financial and medical assistance through the Department of Workforce Services.
- You will be responsible for ensuring the child's medical, dental and mental health needs are met, with support from DCFS.
- DCFS will assist you by making referrals to services for the child and family.
- Friends are not eligible for the Specified Relative Grant but may be eligible for Medicaid.

Steps to Becoming Licensed

- Participate in the child's family team where ongoing decisions regarding the child's placement will be made.
- Complete licensing requirements to become a Kinship Caregiver including a background check and home study.
- If approved by the Office of Licensing, you will receive a five month provisional license. A provisional license may allow the child to stay in your home while you complete additional requirements for full licensure.
- After you receive your provisional license, you must complete Kinship Foster Parent Training.
- If all the requirements for licensure are completed within 5 months of the time you receive your provisional license, you will be officially licensed as a foster parent specifically for this child.
